Profile

EEl is a partnership matching the legal, managerial, training and research skills of one quarter with the engineering, management, training and research skills of the other. The partnership, with a combined 25 years experience of training and management in both the public and voluntary sector, came together in 1995 to form a company dedicated to the provision of cost effective solutions aimed at helping managers in all sectors to achieve their business objectives. EEl is a health and safety consultancy with a number of high profile existing customers within the UK and Ireland and is currently expanding its business internationally. Over the past year it has established business relationships with safety professionals in the USA. The company focuses much of its efforts on the development of quality manuals and handbooks for safety training and has developed Safety Management Manuals on confined space entry, asbestos recognition and information technology auditing. It has designed and delivered Health and Safety training in confined space law and safety management, and designed safety training programs for RPE training, risk assessment and permit to work review and training. In 1988 the company researched and produced 'Confined Spaces Expert' a computer based management and training product for health and safety at work. The CD includes core-training materials incorporated with a self-assessment section permitting users to evaluate their progress. This training package is currently in use in major utilities companies on both sides of the Atlantic, and a textbook has been written and is currently under consideration by a number of publishers. At present EEl is developing a number of Internet training packages on safety. These programs are available through the Internet and internally through intranet systems. A key development since the inception of the company has been the confined spaces licensing and certification program (LCP) whereby training is provided above minimum statutory requirements, trainees are assessed and on success certificated and licensed in confined space awareness and RPE use. This program has recently been introduced to the USA where associates of EEl have been trained and approved to carry out assessments on behalf of the company. During the USA development of this program, EEl tested the feasibility of online assessment. The LCP is continually being expanded to cover other areas of high risk safety e.g. Permits to work. The company thus is engaged in several different types of work:

Training courses & seminars, delivered as open programs or as in-house courses tailored to meet the specific needs of clients.

Research & development leading to the production of manuals, textbooks and CDs,

Audits, research, appraisals, risk assessments etc. on behalf of clients,

On-line consultancy to local & international businesses. Advice & information is offered on the Internet & recent developments include conducting distance testing of trainees' awareness.

Developing Internet training programs on safety.

Profile

Safety Advice Centre was established in 1984. Initially a safety consultancy, business activity soon extended in to the area of safety training with particular emphasis on professional qualifications for safety professionals.

SAC was instrumental in piloting the introduction of NEBOSH accredited training programmes in N.I. In 1997, Safety advice Centre also became an approved Centre though City & Guilds for the assessment of National Vocational Qualifications in Occupational Health & Safety Practice at level II (for all employees) & NVQ's in Removal of Hazardous Waste (Asbestos).

Additionally SAC trainers have extensive experience in designing, developing & delivering tailored training packages for a wide variety of organisations across both the private & public sectors.
